Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-7 and 9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Shioi (EP 1111612).

Regarding claim 1, Shioi discloses a digital recording/playback apparatus comprising:
data storage means for storing stream data having predetermined data format and including a plurality data blocks (see paragraphs 0066 and 0090); playback control (see fig. 17 components 56 and 58 and paragraphs 0035) means for performing control such that a changed read start position of the stream data is determined, and a present read start position is set at a leading position of a data block containing the determined changed read start position (see fig. 15 and paragraph 0035 line 40-col. 8 line 15-24) ; and playback means for playing back the stream data stored in said data storage means from the changed read start position set by said playback control means (see fig. 16 and paragraph 0076).

Regarding claim 2, Shioi discloses the control by said playback control means is executed after one of pause, fast forward, and rewind is performed (see fig. 15 and paragraphs 0068 and 0071).

Regarding claim 3, Shioi discloses the stream data includes the plurality of data blocks, and header information containing the data block sizes and the number the plurality of data blocks (see fig. 20 and paragraphs 0031, 0033 and 0090 and 0092).

Regarding claim 4, Shioi discloses the predetermined data format has a fixed length (see paragraph 0090).

Regarding claim 5, Shioi discloses the predetermined data format has a non-fixed length (see paragraph 0034).

Regarding claim 6, Shioi discloses a digital recording/playback apparatus comprising:
data storage means for storing stream data having a data format including a plurality of different data blocks (see paragraphs 0066 and 0090);

playback control means for performing control such that a changed read start position of the stream data is determined, read start position present data block of first type set at a leading frame position data block of first type which contains the determined changed read start position (see rejection of claim 1 and paragraphs 0037, 0040 and 0049), data block second type is determined on the basis of the data block of first type, and a read start position of present data block of second type is set at a leading frame position of the determined data block of second type (see figures 15 and 16 and paragraphs 0072-0074); and playback means for playing back the stream data stored in said data storage means from the read start position of the data block of first type and the read start position of the data block of second type set by said playback control means (figs. 15 and 16 and paragraphs 0076-0078).

Regarding claim 7, Shioi discloses time stamp information is attached to each of the plurality of types of data block and said playback control means determines the data block of second type on the basis of the time stamp information attached to the data block of first type which contains the changed read start position, and the time stamp information attached to the data block of second type (see paragraphs 0069 and 0071).

Claim 9 is rejected for the same reason as discussed in claim 2 above.

Regarding claim 10, Shioi discloses the plurality of types of data blocks include audio data and video data (see paragraphs 0030).

Regarding claims 11 and 12, the limitations of claims 11 and 12 can be found in claims 1 and 6 above. Therefore claims 11 and 12 are analyzed and rejected for the same reason as discussed in claims 1 and 6 above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shioi in view of Kawai (US Pat. No. 2001/0033581 A1).

Regarding claim 6, Claim 6 differs from Shioi in that the claim further requires FIFO buffers which store the plurality of types of data blocks of the stream data, stored in said data storage means, for each data block type; and information tables which are formed in one-to-one correspondence with said FIFO buffers, and each of which stores the buffer address and time stamp information of data block stored in a corresponding FIFO buffer. Although Shioi does not specifically teach the above limitation, Shioi discloses reproduction of multimedia data is restarted from the state at a time point at which the reproduction was stopped at a previous time (see paragraph 0071). Shioi further discloses a plurality of pieces of index information and information for specifying the number of said pieces of index information onto a recording medium (see claim 2). Shioi further discloses index information are attached to multimedia file and recorded onto a recording medium.

In the same field of endeavor Kawai discloses FIFO buffers which store the plurality of types of data blocks of the stream data, stored in said data storage means, for each data block type (see paragraphs 0155 and 0192); and information tables which are formed in one-to-one correspondence with said FIFO buffers, and each of which stores the buffer address and time stamp information of data block stored in a corresponding FIFO buffer (see paragraph 0121, 0184). Therefore in light of the teaching in Kawai it would have been obvious to modify Shioi by including a FIFO buffer and an information table in order to manage the address and the time of the frame.
